

Jeff Bodick

Screen Painter

Bio

Jeff, a self-taught Baltimore artist, started painting screens in the early 80's. His love for all things Maryland can be seen in his subject matter that adorn screen and canvas alike. His acrylic on canvas painting titled "Looking Stoop-endous" depicts a Baltimore formstone rowhouse with freshly scrubbed marble steps and painted screens on the door and was chosen by Baltimore's WYPR radio as their "Stoop Award" for deserving employees. After losing his wife to cancer and being let go from his employment after a 38 year tenure, Jeff decided to go full time as an artist to support himself and his autistic son, Max. His canvas originals, prints and painted screens are available on Etsy, Jeff Bodick Studio on Facebook or from his Catonsville home studio where commissions are welcome.
